Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-4,6-8, 10-18,21,22, 29,31-33 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Crouch, et al(WO92/02037).

Crouch et al discloses a GaAs substrate(page 1, first paragraph). A metal contact is formed on the substrate (page 3, paragraph 4). The anneal temperature is 200 degrees C, which is within the recited range(page 4, line 5). Temperatures below 250 degrees C are included, which includes the recited range(page 4, middle of first full paragraph). The device formed is an optoelectronic device(Fig. 1 and page 5, lines 3-5). The contact which is annealed is an ohmic contact(page 9, lines7-12). The substrate is GaAs(page 5, last line), which is transparent to light. It is seen in fig. 1 that the stack of layers is etched in a portion of the top layers. The ohmic contact has multiple layers(page 5, last 6 lines). The substrate has p and n layers formed on it(page 5, last two lines, and page 6, first 4 lines).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 5 and 30 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Crouch et al as applied to claim 1 above.

Crouch et al is silent with respect to a solid state growth process.

Although Crouch et al is silent with respect to a solid state growth process, Crouch et al does disclose heating on a hotplate (page 8, last sentence in the second paragraph). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention that Crouch et al encompasses a solid state growth process, in that heating on a hotplate is such a process.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 9,19,20,23-28, are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The prior art of record does not teach or suggest ohmic contact to n substrate.

Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to Caridad M. Everhart whose telephone number is 571-272-1892. The examiner can normally be reached on Monday through Fridays 7:30-4:00.
